Richmond - Marin Co. Bridge Will Centralize Our City and Develop Wonderful Resources

The bridge from Richmond to Marin county is the next big development. Permit from the war department to construct this span is expected to arrive most any day now. That is the only detail left for adjustment. When that permit arrives work will start almost immediately, every other preliminary being out of the way.

An extensive new traffic will come through Richmond when this bridge is opened. It will be a lure for motorists in much greater numbers than now use the Van Damme ferry. When it is in use it is safe to say that a majority of the visitors from various parts of the country that come to see the bay region will get a look at Richmond. The trip that will necessitate a routing over the new bridge will be one of the inevitable features of sightseeing. Among these visitors will always be numbers of eastern and middle western manufacturers and other business men. Richmond will benefit through their seeing our local plants and the location of our city. Its advantages are quickly apparent to the trained industrial and business observer.

It looks as if the projectors of the bridge should co-operate with the city in providing a route to the structure that will give motorists a good view of our city. By the time it is completed the direct route from the north into Richmond via Garrard boulevard will probably be opened. Cutting boulevard will serve as an approach through the harbor section.

One of the best things is that labor will find employment on an extensive scale in construction of the span. We need payroll for our workers.

Local Banking Institution Stands For Progressive Movement, But Is Shy About Politics

We haven't had any "come back" yet from the American Trust Company in connection with the javelin we launched at it the other day asking why it, because of the eminence of its position, did not take a direct interest in the movement for a new charter.

Just to make it emphatic we will repeat that we believe this powerful $250,000,000 institution with its big central bank in Richmond and branches on both sides of the city could, because of its big clientele, the complete confidence the people have in it and the esteem in which its banking methods are held, wield a strong influence in getting the city a modern organic law.

As we said before we are fully aware that the American Trust depends entirely upon its ethical methods and strict attention to the interests of its clients to build up its big business, disdaining any thought of political intrigue for that end, but we claim that a movement for a new charter is not politics, but a big constructive development, just as important to the entire community as location of a ten million dollar industry or a drive for building a church.

Therefore, despite the loud silence we have brought forth, we take this occasion to once more jab this financial institution and insist that its group in Richmond is particularly fitted to get us a new charter.

We know the local manager, Larkin Younce to be one of our most progressive citizens and to have a group of progressives on his advisory board. Larkin knows the needs of Richmond and he is a hustler. To give some history as it comes to us, he sought employment a number of years ago from Charley Crary, the president of the old First National Bank. Crary had no place for him, but liked his appearance and apparent capability and told him he might go out and hustle accounts. This Larkin did and with such success that he soon had a place inside and kept climbing up until he became head man. He is widely known in Richmond and admired by everyone who knows him for his integrity.

Building Permits; Comparative Figures

Richmond fell short in April, 1929 of approximately $100,000, quite a fall down from April, 1928 figures.

Following are the tabulated figures showing the amount of permits for new buildings and alterations during April, 1929, in eastbay cities, compared with April, 1928; also for March, 1929:

	April '29	April '28	March '29	March '28
Richmond	$ 48,870	$ 147,785	$ 21,595	$ 21,595

Election Returns Verified

Richmond City council Monday night canvassed the recent city election returns, and found only one error in the count, that of Winchcole, he having been accredited with 1973, which should be 1966 votes. The error was made in the 19th precinct, at the public library.

THE TERMINAL can print it for you. Call up Richmond 122.

Wharf Roof Bids Now Called For

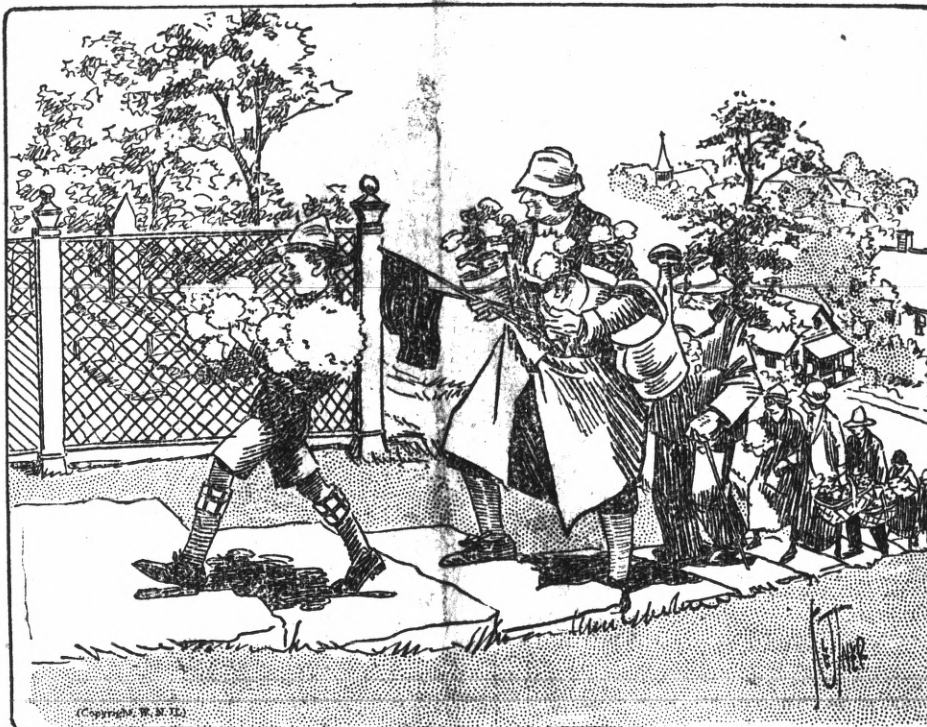

The city council has called for bids for fire retardant roofs for the inner harbor wharfs, no award of this part of the construction contract having been called for at the time the former contracts were awarded. Bids will be opened June 3, specifications to conform to those of the city engineer's.

Annual Dinner

The annual dinner of the Disaster Preparedness committee for Richmond and vicinity will be held at Hotel Carquinez Tuesday, May 28, at 6:15 p. m. The dinner meeting will be held under the auspices of Richmond Chapter American Red Cross, John A. Miller, chairman.

M. M. Vera of Salinas, has taken over the shoe repairing business conducted by C. Smith, the latter being compelled to retire on account of ill health. Mr. Vera is an excellent workman and is doing a nice business at the old stand two doors north of The Terminal office on Sixth street.

Memorial Day

Now comes up the matter of a government airport. We are absolutely sure that the best site about the bay is in that section lying between the Southern Pacific and the Santa Fe and the bay north of the city limits, but the government will demand that any site it accepts be a gift. A site of 100 acres would probably cost $50,000. That $50,000 annually used for the purchase of a slice of Grand Canyon park would pay interest and provide a sinking fund. How much more valuable the airport would be than the park just at present, and we could always get the park later. For ourselves we would welcome a secret session of the council that would bring this about.

Any four citizens of good standing who had entered the recent council campaign on a platform of a new charter, retrieving for the city whatever is possible from the revenues of its harbor facilities, establishing an industrial bureau that will really bring factories and working toward a lowering of taxation would have been elected—unless incumbents and others in the race had made the same pledges. The people of Richmond are on their way now and they will not stop on the forward march until all the aims and other betterments are obtained.

Richmond cannot have too many parks that the people can easily reach—especially the people who may not have cars. We have a good start and the parks that have been provided are fast becoming genuine beauty spots. One of the most beautiful sights in Richmond is Memorial park. Its location right in the heart of the city is fortunate. Nicholl park is also well located and is becoming extremely attractive. The gate is a highly artistic feature.

Talk new charter. Discuss it with your neighbor. Stir up interest in a progressive form of government.

Thirty-six thousand miles of surfaced roads were built in the United States during the year 1928, remarks the National Automobile Club.

One of the main grounds on which six councilmen voted down a motion by Martin to bring all discussion into the open was that location of industries might come up, which would need secret consideration. Will someone point out any industries that have been located through the council, or that have been located after discussion by the council excepting when location of the Ford plant was made the excuse to give away all the harbor facilities. If ever we should get another industry and it needed councilmanic discussion, a special secret session could be held to cover it. We believe that if the El Dorado Oil location had been discussed before the public instead of continually in secret it might have been located here now, or be on its way. There was too little public discussion in that case.

Citizens, watch our two daily papers for the monthly statement of the Parr Terminal Company, with the oft repeated item, "The city's share is so much." As that line in our papers is really all you get, you should never miss it.

It is amazing how long Richmond has been politically controlled to its disadvantage on the myth of a power that is as brittle as thin glass.

The people of Berkeley voted against a bond issue that gave them a chance to get 700 acres in Wildcat canyon at $500 an acre for a park. This is beautifully wooded land, close to a populous city and salable at once for home sites. Richmond is paying $1000 an acre in Grand Canyon Park—but the people did not vote bonds for the purchase.

Druids Picnic

The Druids of Richmond and Albany are preparing to give one of their big annual picnics at Giant Park, Contra Costa county, Sunday, June 9. There will be dancing, games and good music. A gate prize will be given the person holding the lucky number. Joe Oberto is one of the active committee workers.

The reason Larkin Younce, our energetic young banker, is taking such an interest in locating a government or any old sort of an airport in Richmond, is easily explained. Larkin was in the United States flying corps during the war. Another young Richmond celebrity who was in Uncle Sam's flying force is Thomas M. Carlson. Tom had the misfortune while training in the lemon country, San Diego, to be handed a lemon in the shape of an inferior plane and he had a crash that broke about everything in his body. He was tough enough to get well and still retain his smile—and his patriotism.

Congressman Curry has been asked to help expedite granting by the war department of a permit for establishing the harbor lines for Ellis slough, or Cutting Canal, dredging of which is expected to bring payroll industries. This is the Santa Fe project, and is endorsed by all the other property owners along the canal. The channel is to be 300 feet wide, with a turning basin at the west-end.

Work on the industrial highway between Richmond and Oakland should begin when the Richmond-Marin bridge is started.

Great corporations want the best government possible in cities where they operate—and they want the tax rate kept down.

Daniel C. Worlow, familiarly known as "Curley," the cigar stand proprietor at 605 Macdonald left yesterday for different points east, but will visit his old home town in Illinois first, where he will be the guest of his daughter. "Curley" is one of Richmond's live boosters. He may bring back a few factories himself—keep your eye on him.

"Mac," the high class chef at 618 Sixth street, has returned from his vacation at Del Monte, where he was seen on the links recently. He will cater to his fastidious epicures again, and bring back the smiles that were absent during his vacation.

Richmond Must Have Other Inducements Than Just a Harbor and Wharf to Attract Industries

Our industrial agent, Fred D. Parr, has returned from a 3-weeks vacation in the middle states and the eastern seaboard, and this is what Fred discovered:

That industries will come west, as Greeley originally advised, if offered these inducements:

- A sane tax rate.
- A reasonable price for land for factory sites.
- An abundance of cheap water.
- A guarantee of adequate transportation facilities.

That we must offer inducements equal to and better than those offered by Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland and other San Francisco bay ports.

That facilities for shipping by water or rail should be strictly up to requirements, and must comply with all the exacting demands of the government in harbor development and maintenance.

The above are no doubt the paramount questions asked Mr. Parr during his late search for industrial prospects.

No matter how often or how many representatives we send east to try and induce capital to invest here, we must be able to meet next door competition in order to deliver the goods.

That Richmond is destined to do this very thing is a foregone conclusion.

Contra Costa County Taxpayers Association Plans Campaign

The budget committee of the Contra Costa group of California taxpayers' association met at the Carquinez hotel, Richmond, Monday night to confer with M. D. Lack, tax counselor of the state association. The members of this committee are: C. W. Schedler, Pittsburg, chairman; George B. Fredenburg, Richmond; Ralph H. Bergen, Richmond; P. M. Sanford, Richmond; W. A. Hale, Martinez; H. A. West, Antioch; Ben Burroughs, Knightsen; L. V. Richardson, Byron; F. W. Vieth, Crockett; L. E. Hart, Crockett; E. B. Bull, Richmond, chairman of the general committee, and J. D. Keith, chairman of the membership committee, were also present.

Mr. Schedler being in the east the meeting was presided over by Mr. Vieth.

Mr. Lack outlined the procedure followed successfully in other counties where very considerable savings had been made. He spoke in very high terms of the officials of the county and expressed the opinion that they would be glad to cooperate in any effort to bring about greater efficiency and economy in the administration of the county tax funds.

It was decided that immediately upon Mr. Schedler's return to Pittsburg a second meeting of the budget committee would be called at which sub-committees would be appointed and the work started at once.

Tenth Street Paving Bids

Bids received by the city council Monday night for the Tenth street paving job from Cutting to the Ford factory site were as follows: Oakland Paving Co., $84,265; Central Construction Co., $81,458; Hutchison Co., $81,053; California Construction Co., $80,361.

The contract was awarded to the latter, the lowest bidder.

Bring that job work into the Terminal office.

Try The Terminal for six months or a year. As a newspaper you should have The Terminal. You will never get the "inside news" in the milk-fed dailies. Everything is "running smoothly" with the muzzled press. The coming city election, when four new councilmen are to be chosen, may change the political weathervane. Public sentiment surely points in that direction.

Tenth St. Improvement To Go Forward and Connect With Wharf

Building of Tenth street from Cutting boulevard to the harbor front will entail a considerable cost, some $82,000, but an improved thoroughfare should be provided in view of the wharf development that is nearing completion and irrespective of how soon the Ford company builds its plant.

The Parr Terminal Co. lands which were bulkheaded and filled at the taxpayers' expense also need this street improvement.

They will be directly benefited, as the new thoroughfare will run through one large parcel, the north part of the Crockett tract and will be close to the Gilman tract, which was also bulkheaded and given fill at city expense.

The taxpayers must resign themselves to the fact though that any of their money spent in the harbor section will accrue to the financial advantage of the Parr Terminal Co.

The so-called lease, really gift, was so drawn as to take care of that. A copy of this lease can be secured at the city hall of City Clerk Paris. It should be diligently perused by the taxpayers who are contributing that $6.60 which we have all become familiar with.

With the opening of the new wharf units, however, everything should be done to facilitate their profitable operation.

Construction of Tenth street is one of the improvements needed. As long as the taxpayers have their money in this wharf development, nothing that could help bring business for them should be overlooked, even if the Parr Terminal Co. does get all the revenues.

If a good business can be built up, local men may begin getting employment in place of the stevedoring crews brought from San Francisco, this being necessary at present because of the limited amount of stevedoring work here.

Richmond's city tax rate of $4.30 which has been jumped from $2.13 to $2.30 in two years, will no doubt receive another jolt.

In comparison, Berkeley's city tax rate of $1.59 has increased only one cent in five years. The above figures are suggestive, and are cause for reflection.

Financing of the Tenth street improvement is to be done under the 1915 bond act, excepting about 500 feet near the southern terminus at the wharf and adjoining the Ford site, which must all be done and paid for by the city at an approximate cost of $40,000.

This would indicate that the taxpayers must pay the bill and like the proverbial con trap, are caught both "going and coming."

Bureau's fame as a convention city will be increased this month by three meetings. Two hundred members of the Northern California Passenger Agents' Association made a tour of the Redwood highway. The California Press Association excursionists will be entertained later. Then on May 27, 28 and 29 several hundred members of the California Pharmaceutical Association will hold their state convention.

Los Angeles would be permitted to protect its water supply in Inyo and Mono counties, California, in a bill introduced by Representative Crall at Washington. The measure would provide for the sale by the Government to Los Angeles of about 182,300 acres of public land at $1.25 per acre, adjacent to Owens river and watershed, from which the city obtains most of its water.

Spring flowers in all their glorious color make the trip up the Redwood highway particularly attractive at the present time. Rhododendrons and azaleas are blooming in Humboldt and Del Norte counties and Mendocino county's rhododendrons are already in bloom in the vicinity of Mendocino City and Albion. The Touring Bureau of the California State Automobile Association reports the Redwood highway in good condition for touring, the improvement work which is under way offering no difficulties to traffic.

There is still some construction work between Petaluma and Santa Rosa and a four and half mile detour is in effect around this work. Oiling is under way north of Cloverdale and this work is being handled so that motorists can use half the roadway.

Modesto Irrigation District has filed a complaint with the Railroad Commission against the San Joaquin Light and Power Corporation and Pacific Gas and Electric Company alleging that both the defendant corporations have refused to serve the district with electric energy, and asking the Railroad Commission to issue its order requiring defendants to furnish such energy, and it necessary to obtain certain certificates of public convenience and necessity authorizing them to do so. Complainant alleges that its supply of electric energy from its Don Pedro project is not sufficient to care for the demands of its territory, and it is necessary to purchase energy to supplement the same. The complaint recites that both electric utilities have declined to serve the district for the reason that they do not wish themselves out to serve competing electric systems.

Choosing Santa Monica as the site for the next convention, the California State Division of the International Association for Identification in session at Fresno elected officers for the coming year with George Bottorff of San Bernardino chosen president.

Leon P. Haslam is having plans prepared for a four-story reinforced concrete hotel building, to be erected on the State highway, Santa Maria. It will contain 100 rooms and cost about $200,000.

Plans for completing the reorganization started last year was the principal business before the California Prune and Apricot Growers' Association at its annual meeting at San Jose.

Portola Water Company, operating in the town of Portola, Plumas county, has applied to the Railroad Commission for authority to borrow $100,000 at seven per cent interest from the Plumas County Bank of Quincy, for the purpose of retiring outstanding indebtedness and to pay for extensions and improvements to its system.

Declaring there evidently had been a misunderstanding by bidders regarding the amount of interest the recently voted $100,000 issue of Red Bluff grammar school bonds should carry, the board of supervisors reissued bonds of five San Francisco bond houses for the issue and called for new bids.

When Wells Johnson and his wife left Gerber by automobile four weeks ago for New York they took along "Rags," their dog, an Irish setter. Friends later received word from El Paso, Texas, that the dog had disappeared. Recently it came limping into Gerber, its paws raw after its long walk. It was ravenously hungry and thirsty. It recognized Al Martindale, express agent, a former neighbor to the Johnsons, and has since adopted him as a master.

Bare legs may be tolerated during the daytime but Santa Clara High School girls must wear stockings at night, at least when attending formal school dances, or they don't dance. So decreed school authorities after barring a dozen girl students from the annual junior dance recently. The girls arrived clad in evening gowns and slippers but sans stockings. Principal Charles W. Townsend and Miss Stella Leviston, dean of girls, refused to permit them on the floor until they obtained the necessary raiment.

The Monterey sardine fishermen's organization and eleven Lampara boat owners, formerly connected with the boat owners' organization, have buried the hatchet after a breach which occurred more than a year ago and resulted in almost continual price slashing. Where the war between the two groups lowered the squid price to a pound on certain days, the price was paid to be between 5 and 6 cents a pound now. The reunion of the two organizations is reported to have been brought about by a mutual desire both to establish uniform prices and restore peaceful operating conditions.

Property owners, who passed a resolution asking the County Board of Supervisors to take action in preventing establishment of auto camps within one-half mile of the San Leandro city limits, have been informed that the supervisors lack the power to prohibit such enterprises, according to a letter received from Charles Heyer, member of the board. These property owners claim that such camps constitute a nuisance and a hindrance to the public welfare, because of the class of motorists that are catered to.

Supported by the soldiers and sailors group in the State Legislature, the Senate passed the $20,000,000 home loan program for California service men. The bill involves no liability upon the state, in that the loans are made upon a basis of property requirements of the veterans' welfare board act. California has voted two previous issues, one of $10,000,000, the second for $20,000,000. These amounts have been absorbed into loans. The call for additional loans has been great.

The necessity of playgrounds in Mill Valley for children of that city was discussed at a dinner of a gathering of residents and business men at a community dinner at the Tamalpais High School. Following a talk on the problem by Granville Thomas, director of recreation of the city of Berkeley, Frederick Thompson was appointed a permanent chairman of a committee to work with him in the interest of playgrounds for Mill Valley. He is to select the other four members of the committee. Thomas recommended surfacing of the old Mill Valley school court to be used as a utility court; the construction of a wading pool in old Mill Park; the building of a battery of tennis courts on Boyle Park, explaining that several courts could be surfaced more economically than a single court. He suggested some kind of playgrounds should be provided at central points for children of various ages, preschool from 5 to 12, and older.

The keen eye of Carl Rabe, traffic officer, resulted in the capture of Ernest Brown, 24, and Stephen O'Connor, 30, who escaped from the San Quentin convict road camp at Fenton in the Feather River districts a short time ago. The fugitives were encountered walking on the highway near Oroville, and the traffic officer arrested them from a description furnished him earlier in the day. They offered no resistance.

The fifth annual community fair will be held in Galt on August 16, 17 and 18, according to the announcement of the directors.

15th U. S. INFANTRY ON DUTY IN CHINA

Regiment Has Been on Job for Seventeen Years.

Tientsin.—American marines who came to Tientsin about eighteen months ago 8,200 strong have all sailed away. Now that they are gone, are Americans and American interests in Tientsin and in north China without armed protection? Far from it. "Oh, a gunboat or so near Tientsin and the American Legation guard at Peking—they are on the job," is the reply many Americans might give to an inquiry on the subject.

American gunboats or cruisers are not permanently stationed near Tientsin, and the legation guard at Peking is the personal guard of the American minister. But Americans and their interests in Tientsin and in north China are amply guarded. Two battalions of the Fifteenth Infantry, U. S. A., 900 strong, stay in Tientsin year in and year out. Chinese crises come and go, Chinese governments rise and fall, Tientsin and Peking are captured and held by first one action and then by another: the American marines arrive and depart—but the Fifteenth Infantry is always on the job.

A Pleasant Billet. The presence of these American soldiers in China is sanctioned under the Boxer protocol of 1901, the treaty signed by China after the Boxer horde besieged the Peking legation quarter in the summer of 1900.

From 1901 until 1912 no American forces were maintained at Tientsin, but for nearly seventeen years, or since the civil war began, two battalions of the Fifteenth have been stationed here, the other battalion being in the Philippine Islands.

At present the American army personnel in Tientsin totals 50 officers and 850 men. Army transports arrive three times a year with replacements for officers and men whose tour of duty here or terms of enlistment are about to expire.

In general officers remain at Tientsin three years and enlisted men about the same period. The men for the ranks are sent out when they are mostly fresh recruits and leave in time to be discharged in the United States when their four-year terms expire.

So pleasant is army life at the Tientsin post that there are many re-enlistments. The United States now assigns a high general officer in Tientsin in addition to the active commander of the Fifteenth, and at present Brig. Gen. J. C. Custer fills this post. Col. Isaac Newell is commander of the Fifteenth regiment. General Castner came to Tientsin in May, 1928, and will normally be transferred soon. As yet his successor has not been announced.

One of the cardinal principles of the Tientsin post is to cultivate good will in China, and in order to promote this policy General Castner about twenty months ago inaugurated a course of compulsory study of the Chinese language. Officers and men alike must begin to study Chinese as soon as they arrive in Tientsin. It is the general theory, which is supported by records of the last year and a half, that chances for misunderstanding between the soldiers and the Chinese are greatly reduced if the Americans have an understanding of the language.

Comfortable Quarters. The forces of the American army in China are comfortably quartered in a walled compound in the former German concession in Tientsin, in buildings built for the German forces. When China joined the allies in the World War Germany lost all her Boxer protocol and other treaty rights in this country.

The barracks property is Chinese owned and is in territory now under the administration of the Chinese authorities. The activities of the post have so expanded that the original compound has become too small, and various departments, such as stables, wagon yard, ice plant, and post exchanges, have overflowed to adjacent land—also Chinese owned and occupied under rental agreements.

Naturally the problem of keeping 850 young men occupied, amused, and out of trouble is no light matter, particularly in a port city in the Far East, where liquor is cheap and where there are relatively few desirable white civilian associates to be found by the men. But this phase has been so handled that little trouble is experienced.

The Fifteenth Infantry, during nearly seventeen years in China, has "never had to fire a shot" except in range practice. The regiment's ranges are at Chingwantao, a harbor north-east of Tientsin, where a summer camp is maintained. These ranges have 80 targets. Every man of the command spends a minimum of two months at the camp, both for marksmanship training and for healthful change from the humid heat of Tientsin.

Offers Baby in Payment of Fine for Stealing. Geneva, Ill.—Mrs. Sophia Maria, tried before Justice W. A. Kelser for the theft of $27, couldn't pay her fine but offered the alderman her little brown-eyed girl as payment.

"She's worth more than you can ever fine me, and I took the money to provide for her—but you may have her," the mother said.

"Go home—and take your baby with you," Justice Kelser replied.

22 DOGS, 3 CATS KEPT BY RECLUSE

All Housed in One Room by New York Woman.

Rochester, N. Y.—Police and a Humane society representative have released 22 dogs and three large Persian cats from the home of a woman recluse at No. 298 Seio street, after breaking into the house in an effort to serve a nuisance warrant on the occupant. The woman was absent.

Locked in a single room for several weeks, the animals were wild when Motorcycle Policeman Louth and Humane society representative walked into their quarters. The menagerie had shared the room with their mistress. She, in turn, used it as kitchen, dining room, bedroom and parlor, say police.

After a merry chase in which one small dog sank his teeth through the leather glove of the policeman, the animals were rounded up and taken to the pound, where William J. Boykin, superintendent, took charge of them.

They ranged in size and value from a large white colts to a small white Pekinese, including a few intermediary types of mongrels.

The woman is said to be Mrs. John Smith, concerning whom nobody knows anything except that she keeps dogs. The warrant was issued on complaint of Pasquale Sarceno of No. 236 Seio street, owner of the house. Sarceno told police that Mrs. Smith was at home at three o'clock in the morning and left again at 3:30 o'clock.

A check-up with city authorities showed the woman had a kennel license to keep five blooded dogs, but no papers were valuable to show any of the dogs had pedigrees. The others were tagless. Five of them were small puppies. Police say the woman had been receiving charitable aid from the city.

Old clothing, burlap sacks and blankets had been nailed to the windows to make it impossible to see into the rooms. Although she had rented the whole house, the woman had furnished only the room where the dogs lived and furniture there was meager.

The cats were perched on high furniture out of reach of the dogs. Despite their dark quarters and close confinement, all the animals seemed well fed and in fairly good health, said Superintendent Boykin.

Blinded War Hero on Long Walk for Sight

Berlin.—Wilhelm Heger, veteran trouper who before the war thrilled thousands of audiences in all parts of the world as "Texas William," a circus athlete, is now penniless and blind, and walking to Vienna in hope of regaining his sight.

Heger was wounded 11 times during the war, once suffering a fractured skull. A silver plate was inserted in his skull.

An accident after the war damaged the silver plate, however, and injured the visual nerve, causing blindness. Berlin doctors were unable to repair the damage and suggested that he go to Vienna and consult the specialist there who performed the original operation.

Without funds for the trip, Heger set out walking.

Roosevelt Plans Hunt in "Forbidden Land"

Shanghai.—Kermit Roosevelt and other members of the Field museum expedition in Asia are planning to brace the wilds of the "Forbidden Land" bordering on Tibet in search of the giant panther and other rare animals without the aid of native guides and hunters.

The natives, according to the correspondent, have refused to aid the expedition because of fear of the fierce tribes of Tibetan bandits. The native bandits' penalty for white men entering their land is death. The giant panther sought by the son of the late Theodore Roosevelt and his associates is regarded as one of the most rare and ferocious animals known.

Tigers Even Scarce. Calcutta.—Tigers last year killed 1,033 men in India and tiger hunters bagged 1,068 of the animals.

Prayer So Fervent Gets Money for It

New Haven, Conn.—Alto Lee Snell, who is studying for a doctor of philosophy degree at Yale, and H. B. Anthony, an elder of the Church of the Nazarene, are benevolence the high cost of prayer.

A well-dressed man with a courteous and dignified manner, who described himself as Charles Westcott, a fellow communicant of the church, called upon Snell and was invited with Anthony to dinner. Westcott rendered an impressive prayer—so impressive, in fact, that when he asked for a loan to tide him over a "slight emergency" Snell and Anthony accommodated him.

The visitor thanked them graciously and departed. That was March 25. Snell and Anthony have asked the police to look for him.

CONSULT STARS TO AVOID SEA WRECKS

Give Astrologers Chance to Do Their Stuff.

Berlin.—Now it can be told. The thrift of shipping men, their reluctance to pay out good money for astrologers on their staff, is responsible for disasters at sea.

Ships that have met with disaster were launched at an unfavorable point of view, that is, And it would have been so easy to have selected more propitious hours for the launches, or at least to have avoided unfavorable hours. A well-paid, first-class astrologer would never have permitted a launching to take place if, for instance, there is a new moon in the sign of the "Akasha-Tatwa," or if Saturnus is under the sign of the Capricorn.

All of this knowledge we owe to Wilhelm Becker, who confesses he is an eminent astrologer. If the shipping magnates of the North German Lloyd line had heard about him earlier, they might have been spared the loss of their new giant vessel Europa, which was almost completely destroyed by fire recently in Hamburg harbor.

What Wilhelm Says. If you won't believe it, listen to what Wilhelm Becker had to say in the periodical Astrology, way back in September, 1928. Then he cast the horoscope for the Europa, and although he did not predict the conflagration he declared that things did not augur too well.

At the time of the launching of the Europa on August 15, 1928, at 5:15 p. m., the juxtaposition of the helm Becker wrote was as follows: "There was a new moon in the sign of the 'Akasha-Tatwa.' Saturnus was under the sign of the Capricorn, and what is more, the former was in 'receding' opposition to Mars, while the quadrant of Venus dwelt in the eighth house."

This may mean little or nothing to you. But the expert eye of Wilhelm saw at once that this kind of juxtaposition was extremely unfavorable, not to say sinister, for, so Wilhelm claims, it signified that "five planets were in the house of death."

May Be Avoided.

Wilhelm Becker added that he did not want to give away to "Cassandre Cries," but that, nevertheless, he felt it his duty to recall a similarly unfavorable horoscope, that of the ill-fated Titanic, the giant vessel which foundered in midocean after smashing into an iceberg one dark night in the middle of April, 1912.

And all this disaster may be avoided. It is only necessary to select the most propitious hour for the launching of a vessel. Launching hours are equal to the birth of a child, Wilhelm Becker claims.

Uses Bodies of Foes as Cannon Projectiles

London.—Bacha Sakao, the brigand king of Afghanistan, has disposed of four of his enemies by having them shot from the mouths of cannon, the Daily Mail's Lahore correspondent reported recently.

The king claimed the men were leaders of a plot to kill him. Following up his attempt to entrench himself firmly in the kingdom he seized from Amanullah, Bacha Sakao offered a large reward for Nadir Khan, minister of war in Amanullah's government.

Amanullah also was desirous of arresting Nadir Khan, the Daily Mail dispatch said, but the reason was not given. It was reported last February that Nadir Khan was preparing for an attempt to seize the throne for himself.

Further fighting in Sheik Habab valley was reported.

Influenza Reason Why Deaths Outpace Births

London.—The influenza epidemic and the bitter weather are generally blamed for the excess of deaths over births which has caused England's population to drop 7,000, of which 2,700 is accounted for by the deaths from influenza. Manchester dropped 1,267; Birmingham, 1,000.

Ordinarily births easily outstrip deaths in England. For the first three months of last year the population of large towns grew 18,000, this year they are decreased. London alone grew by 8,500.

The total of the influenza deaths in the large towns was 12,700. The combination of cold weather and influenza proved particularly fatal to the aged. There were 1,287 London deaths of persons over sixty-five years of age.

Doomed Mexican Saved by Masonic Brother

El Paso, Texas.—How a brother Mason in the federal army saved his life while seven other rebel paymasters were being shot down in Chihuahua, was related at Juarez by Raymundo L. Cervantes, rebel paymaster.

"I had been lined up with seven other paymasters," he said. "I knew I was to be shot. Then I happened to see a lieutenant colonel among the federal officers whom I knew."

"Hey, Garza; how do you treat a brother?" I shouted to him. "He turned, recognized me and told subordinates to spare my life, and here I am."

DAINTY FOODS

Summer is with us and we enjoy the lighter, less rich and heavy desserts that were served during cold weather.

Maple Italian Cream. — Soften two tablespoonsful of gelatin in one-fourth of a cupful of cold water; dissolve over hot water.

er, add one cupful of thinly shaved maple sugar, and the slightly beaten yolks of three eggs; add two cupsful of scented milk to which the sugar has been added. Cook over hot water until the mixture with a spoon, then add the gelatin. Chill until the mixture thickens fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Turn into a fluted mold and chill. Serve with fruit sauce or whipped and sweetened cream.

Antler's Tartine.—Roll a rich paste one-fourth inch thick and eight inches in diameter—there should be three rounds. Prick the surface of each with a fork and cut out the center of one place, leaving a rim one and one-half inches wide. Bake a delicate brown on baking sheets. Arrange carefully on a round plate, cover with a cream filling, place the second round and spread with more cream, then place the rim and fill the center, heaping well with choice strawberries cut into halves. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve from the table.

Emergency Dessert.—Cut rounds of pound cake and arrange on chilled plates, heap on the cake two colors of ice cream, chocolate and vanilla or strawberry and vanilla. Jelly roll cut into inch slices, with a rose of whipped cream and served very cold with a few spoonfuls of chopped maraschino cherries as a garnish, makes quick and good dessert.

Spanish Potatoes.—Boil potatoes as usual, drain and turn into a hot vegetable dish in which has been placed two or three tablespoonsful of butter and the same amount of shredded onion, salt and cayenne pepper to season. Turn and chop into coarse pieces until all are well covered with the butter and onion. Serve with beef-steak.

A Few Choice Salads.

With fresh shrimps there is no way of serving them, pink, fresh and meaty, more simply or more tasty than with a simple french dressing with a teaspoonful of worcestershire sauce added. Serve in a nest of fresh, crisp lettuce, just off the ice.

Chicken Salad.—Cut cold boiled chicken into small cubes; put into a bowl and to each quart allow a teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of lemon juice and a few dashes of white pepper. Mix and set aside to marinate until serving time. Cut two-thirds as much celery as chicken and allow to stand in a cold place. At serving time mix all together with a good mayonnaise. Serve on lettuce, garnish with olives, capers and sliced hard-cooked eggs.

Another Shrimp Salad.—Take two cupfuls of cooked shrimps (fresh if possible, canned will do), break into bits, add one cupful of diced celery, one-third of a cupful of sliced stuffed olives and cover with one-third of a cupful of french dressing. Chill for an hour, then add mayonnaise to taste. Serve on lettuce.

Monte Carlo Salad.—Take six slices of pineapple, one cream cheese, two tablespoonsful of chili sauce, truffles, pimentoes, paprika, french dressing and mayonnaise. Pour the french dressing with the paprika over the pineapple. Add the chili sauce to the cream cheese and form into balls the size of the hole in the pineapple slice. Arrange a ball in the center of each slice of pineapple which has been placed on lettuce on chilled plates. With scissors cut spades and clubs from the truffles and place one on each side of the slice. On the alternating space place hearts and diamonds cut from pimentoes. Garnish sparingly with parsley. This is an unusually delightful salad to serve at a card party.

Weldor Salad.—This is so well known and liked that it seems trite to mention it; however it is a good one to be recalled. Mix an equal quantity of chicken, diced, with tender celery, also diced; add one-half cupful of pecan meats to a quart of the celery and chicken. Add a tablespoonful of lemon juice and a bit of olive oil, let stand until serving time then add mayonnaise and serve on lettuce. Season well before adding the french dressing with salt and white pepper.

Cultivating Greenland There comes a death-knell for the term "Greenland's icy mountains." News has been sent out that Danish farmers have started to cultivate the lands of that far Arctic possession, and with the prowess of the Danes in agriculture, in their own land, and elsewhere, success should come from the venture.

The northland of Canada has shown its fertility and possible wealth in latitudes long thought a waste. The redemption of Greenland will interest the world and be of special significance to this country with its vast undeveloped areas lying much farther south than the "icy" mountains of Greenland.

Dame Fashion Smiles

By Grace Jewett Austin

Grace J. Austin.

Dame Fashion had an opportunity that would have been appreciated by any June bride, or indeed by brides of any season. A man who has been hailed with great acclaim as a dress designer took seven and a half yards of gleaming white satin, a square of beautiful lace, two clusters of orange blossoms, many yards of soft green tulle and a paper of pins as his assistant.

A tall, graceful brunette was his model, and like a magician, he pinned the shining folds around her, added the veil and all the accessories, until at last she walked away, as regal a bride in appearance as those who have symphony orchestras for their wedding music, with bishops to officiate. Some said that the bride veil, with the green just hinted beneath the white, reminded them of the cataract foam-veil at Niagara falls.

But Dame Fashion wanted to know more, and with the first opportunity, asked some questions. The designer said:

"Yes, it is my custom to use color always with bridal veils. The special color chosen depends much on the color of the gowns of the attendants. The most recent color effect I have used is a sultan or even deeper tan, in the whole bridal costume."

An astonished Dame demanded if the bride veil and all was in sultan. "Certainly, the bride veil and all. The effect is astonishingly beautiful."

Then Dame Fashion remembered all she had heard and read of the beauty of ancient and yellowed heirloom veils and laces, and realized that these effects were much the same.

At the same fashion exhibition, it seemed quite plain that, just like the old saying, "Every dog has his day," so it is equally true that every costume has its special period or handbag. The pretty fabric bag, all tapestry and gay with flowers and bright designs, is said to have begun its life history at southern resorts, but it certainly took a flying trip northward, and with all its pride of mixed coloring and lightness of weight, is prominently in the mode now all over the nation.

First Dame Fashion would make up her mind that there were more envelope purses and those with back straps in evidence than any other kind, but by another moment along would come plenty of bags with comfortably long handles. Grained calf was there, often with modernistic patches of bright kid; pin seal and genuine ostrich are good if you can afford them; water snake purses become especially effective if the pumps worn have the same irregular black spots on gray.

And the colors? Not a bit of trouble to find them in blue, red, black, green, gray, brown, sultan and beige. And what is beige? Ah, Pilate, you didn't ask a much harder question when you said, "What is truth?" A shoe authority was asked one day lately for beige pumps, and laid out twelve different shades!

But quite the aristocratic thing to say this summer about your new bag is to call attention to the fact that it has an inner section for your passport!

No Wardrobe Complete Without Short Jacket

This year short jackets are more in demand than ever—no summer wardrobe is really complete without one or more, says the Woman's Home Companion. The model illustrated was made of white flannel with flowery sprays embroidered in wools in such enchanting colors as coral, coral, rose, peach, maize, peacock blue and amethyst, with leaves and border in soft green. A lining of maize silk added the finishing touch of perfection. If a white coat is not desired, a yellow, pale green, peach, cream or beige would make a delightful background for the rich embroidery.

Flour Bags Make Neat House Frocks, Aprons

Sloveness went out with the era of the dressing sack and boudoir cap. The up-to-date woman is as smartly, though suitably, dressed for her working hours as for pleasure, and no less becomingly.

The house frock shown here, for example, meets all the requirements of simplicity, smartness and freedom of movement. It also meets the slender pocketbook since it can be made for little or nothing at home. The materials required are four empty flour bags and four yards of bias tape. A patent-leather or suede belt is a smart accessory and can be used on any number of other frocks besides, or a narrow belt of contrasting material can be made.

The bags you probably have in the house from flour bought for home baking, or almost any baker will sell them for a few cents apiece. First you will want to take out the stamping, and that is not a difficult task. Many women prefer to do this by covering the inked places with lard or soaking them in kerosene for a few hours and then washing in warm water. This flour bag material takes an excellent dye, so that with a little effort, one may have her favorite shades of green, blue or rose, with bias binding in some effective contrasting color.

In cutting such a pattern as this out of flour bags, it will be necessary to have a seam across the shoulder. A smart effect is obtained by binding the front edge of the shoulders and then stitching it down to the back edge.

The clever apron also shown can be made from the same material. This style requires a little more work than a straight slip-over model, but its additional attractiveness well repays one. The circular skirt is scalloped top and bottom and bound with colored bias tape, as are the pocket, armholes and neck and straps. A corn yellow with black, light green with lavender, light with dark blue, are a few of the effective color schemes which may be obtained by dyeing the flour bags.

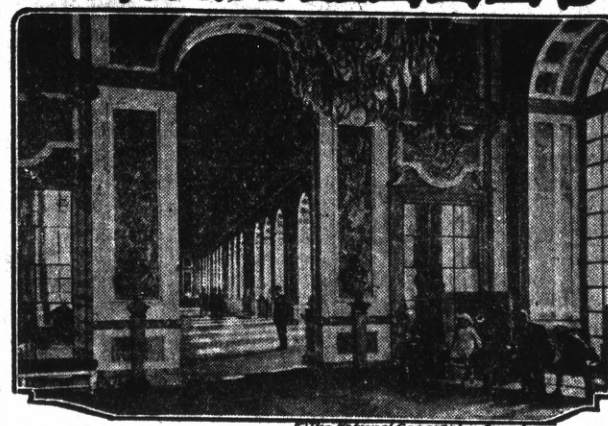

Offer Sports Costumes in Many Smart Designs

A new tennis ensemble consists of a jumper with Vionnet seaming in a manner to insure absolute freedom of motion, and a sleeveless slip-on sweater. This latter is made with a notched collar, small slit pockets and a perforated bottom. Both are made of jersey and come in bright colors only. Stripes and plaids are used in one or the other, either the jumper or jacket remaining plain for contrast.

Smart little jackets to wear with either the sports frock or semiformal sports frocks are to be found in dapper styles. Even the fabrics seem to carry out the smart impression, for they range from cotton plique and ombre striped flannel, to quilted silks, with all-over designs in conservative patterns.

Velvet in purple, all the soft green shades, marine blue, brown and black, is the most popular material for it can be worn with a greater variety of frocks. These little jackets are finished with simple turn-over collars, strictly mannish ones, and the tuxedo-bow collar. Some are made in double breasted styles, others finished with a single button or double link. All the better ones except those in cotton plique and corduroy are lined with silk in a neutral shade.

VERSAILLES

Looking into the Hall of Mirrors, Versailles.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

AS THE tired and travel-worn visitor arrives at the gates of the palace of Versailles and passes through under the gliding arms of France, he enters the courtyard and sees facing him the great equestrian statue of Louis XIV, the roi soleil, that august monarch who occupied the throne of France for 72 years.

Guarding the court in impressive grandeur are statues of distinguished statesmen and marshals, like giants of old, and even across the vast expanse of cobblestones stretching in every direction these honored of France appear of heroic size.

At either side and in front rise the impressive walls of "the architectural masterpiece of the most brilliant era of a great nation," later transformed by King Louis Philippe (1830-37) into a museum "to all the glories of France."

This is the first view of the palace as seen by the majority of travelers from other lands, who make of it a goal of artistic pilgrimage, a place of historic curiosity, or merely one of the sights of the country, depending upon the visitor and his cultural interests.

The patrons of art come to see the creations of the architect Mansart, the murals and decorations of Le Brun, the portraits by Mignard, the sculptures of Coysevox, and the landscape gardening of Le Notre, whose design of the extensive park has been kept almost intact through the vicissitudes of the passing years.

For the students of history the shades of such personages as the "Great King" and his successors, who made this their home and seat of government until the Revolution—Mollere, Mesdames de Montespan, de Maintenon, de Pompadour, du Barry, and Queen Antoinette—flit through the scene attired in the costumes of the romantic long ago.

May Have Cost $100,000,000.

The Grande Chapelle, which attracts instant attention upon arrival within the gates, was designed by Mansart, who obtained some of his ideas for it from the Sainte Chapelle in Paris. Louis XIV, having become devout in his later years, "determined to raise that monument to his piety."

In the hundreds of rooms in the palace it is said that 10,000 persons could be housed, and although the facts of the cost of this magnificent creation can never be accurately known, it has been estimated at $100,000,000, which, considering the period and the methods employed by an absolute monarch, is tremendous, even in these eight-hour days.

The architecture is of the most eye-filling style and the interior furnishings were the dernier cri in luxury. A hundred sculptors are said to have been employed to provide the statuary which decorated the gardens as well as the palace itself, and painters before count executed masterpieces to adorn its walls and ceilings.

It was Versailles which furnished the model for the palace of Sans Souci at Potsdam and other less widely known German palaces, the Schonbrunn at Vienna, the Wren portion of Hampton Court in England, and many others throughout Europe.

Just as Louis XIV made of Versailles the center of interest of his France by the brilliance of his court, and attracted to it those nobles of his country who might have made more trouble for him had they remained at home, it had been the policy of the Bourbons, initiated by Henry IV, to call to France the artistic industries of other countries. The effect of this policy is to be seen even today in the artistic productions of the French.

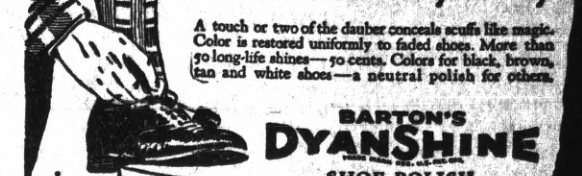

Flemings and Italians who excelled in the finer arts were induced to make their homes in France and to act as teachers to the artistically inclined. In this manner the royal manufactures of tapestries, carpets, furniture, and porcelain were established, and the designs of the foreign masters gradually modified and adapted to produce the French classic style.

Colbert, the great minister of Louis XIV, who was bequeathed to him by Cardinal Mazarin, organized an academy of architecture. There was also an academy of painting and sculpture, and even a French academy at Rome had been established to provide further facilities for the art students to see the masterpieces of the Greeks and the Romans.

This policy of encouragement and royal assistance bore glorious fruit.

Author's Faith in His Book Brought Results

Aspiring to be an author, Jonathan Leonard wrote a story of Cape Cod life and submitted it to a publisher, who promptly returned it, and thereupon he sent it to several other publishers one after the other with the same result, and finally becoming discouraged, at the age of fifty, he set about to print the book through his own endeavors and by his own hands. He purchased a small printing press and set the type himself, printing two pages at a time until the work was completed. Then he went out and learned something about bookbinding and bound 100 volumes, mainly for the purpose of observing the formalities of the copyright laws. The accumulation of volumes was distributed among his friends and finally a copy fell into the hands of one of the publishers who had passed upon it before and he saw the merits of the work and immediately arranged for another edition. In the meantime Mr. Leonard had written another book and the same publisher has contracted to handle it also.—Exchange.

Albany Has Her "Troubles" Same as Other Cities

Albany, Cal., May 23.—"More elections, more taxes, more expense, more unrest" is the cry in Albany. All on account of a small political group who enjoy the game of "starting things, and keeping it stirred up." The $3.00 special high school tax and the annexation to Berkeley bug keep hanging over little Albany like a pall, or a joke, or something.

Unable to get decisions on either from the higher courts as to the legality of the $3.00 tax, the city is financially embarrassed, and no relief in sight after several months of patient waiting.

The holdup of the last annexation petition has been removed by the decision handed down Monday by the court of appeal issuing a peremptory writ of mandate compelling the city council of Albany to call an election in the matter of annexation.

This will make the third time an election has been called for this purpose, being twice defeated. The people are tired out, and say this election should settle forever a question of little urgency and merit in the opinion of the sane taxpaying contingent.

It is believed, if the decision of the appellate court stands, the election to determine Albany's autonomy will be called about the first of July.

The high school tax of $3.00 per $100 assessed value is for this year only, making a total tax of $8.12 for 1928-'29.

SUMMONS SLEEPING FIRE FORCE WHEN ALARM FAILS

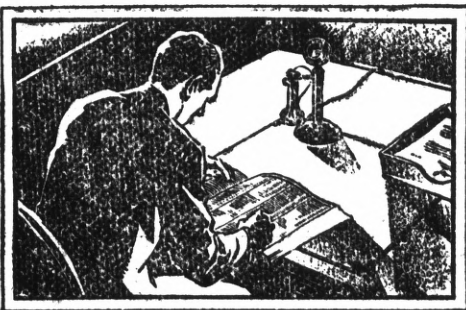

When the fire alarm system at the local fire station at River Dam, Wis., failed to function early one Sunday morning recently, Miss Helen Hammer, night telephone operator, resourcefully met the emergency. The operator did not have a list of the firemen, but she called up all the men whom she knew to be members of the department and informed them of the location of the blaze which had broken out shortly after midnight. The alarm stop the city hall was out of commission and the fire bell also was frozen, and Miss Hammer's efforts in routing out the sleeping members of the fire department undoubtedly prevented a conflagration.

This is one of the services that enables its operating companies to give the United States the best telephone communication in the world.

Long Distance Record Broken

Perhaps the record for a long distance newspaper interview was established when the engagement of Miss Helen Wills of tennis fame to Frederick Shander Moody, Jr., of San Francisco, was announced. The London Evening News, on receiving the report of the engagement, called up the tennis star on the transatlantic transcontinental telephone, and in this way secured direct confirmation of the story, and her assurance that the engagement would not interfere with her Wimbledon visit this year.

It was around dinner time in London when the enterprising British newspaper called up the American star, but it was around breakfast time on the Pacific Coast. The reporter and the American girl were separated by more than 6,000 miles of land and water.

How to Invest Wisely

In an article in Liberty, Irving Fisher, Professor of Economics at Yale University, said that the individual "will, in general, do well if he invests through investment council." This is the secret of successful security purchasing. The mechanism of modern financial dealing is so complex that the average person, without knowledge, experience or contacts, cannot hope to scientifically invest his money. Investment bankers, or brokers who are members of large stock exchanges, are glad to advise the prospective investor. Professor Fisher pointed out that securities have naturally appreciated in value along with the great progress made by the concerns that issue them. High prices are not a sign of inflation.

Ignorant investing is financial suicide and enriches crooked manipulators and grafters of all sorts. There is no excuse today for the careless investor.

Some Good Rules to Stimulate Prosperity

Pay labor the highest possible wages. Prosperity is intimately related to a liberal wage scale.

Treat labor as a business partner. Successful industry depends more on human relations than upon the organization of money and machines.

Conduct business in the full light of day. Public confidence and public suspicion may be separated only by a door.

Remember that the law of supply and demand is inexorable. It would also be well to remember that there is no necessity for producing an excess.

Live and help live. Even prosperous industries cannot afford to have the backward industries too far behind the procession. Prosperity to be permanent must be equally distributed.

Welcome new ideas. To establish permanent institutions we must always be prepared for changes.

Never be satisfied that what has been achieved is sufficient. Smugness and complacency do not promote progress.

Operate business on the most economical basis. Price cutting, overexpansion, uneconomical methods of distribution are harmful to business and to the public as price fixing monopolies and rebates.

Look ahead and think ahead. It is easier to avoid depressions than it is to cure them.

Smile, be cheerful and work upon the basis that the fundamental purpose of business is to promote the happiness of human beings.

REMEMBERING NAMES

I HAVE an unfortunate reputation for being able to remember names, a reputation which, though often undeserved, I feel under obligation to keep unimpaired. It is worth a good deal to be able to call a man by name whom one has not seen for twenty-five years.

I talk to fifty or more young fellows a day, and if I can call them by name or better still by their first names, I am infinitely more effective than if I stall along not knowing whether the man in front of me is Jones or Rosenblatt.

Memory is a matter of associations. The psychologists tell me that I presume I have learned usually to make mine unconsciously, but sometimes the unconscious association refuses to come and the simplest names elude me.

I could never say Hepburn's name, for instance. I knew him well; I was never confused as to his identity. I knew where he lived, where he came from, his roommate's name, his business, and everything about him, but his name was always playing about the outer edges of my memory.

I believe I have more than ordinary curiosity about people. When I see a familiar face to which I cannot attach the proper name, I give myself no peace until I have run the name to cover. My lay reluctant memory knows that I shall not be satisfied until I get the elusive name, and so usually goes after it at once. Sometimes it takes me days to find the forgotten name, but I never give up until I find it.

We forget names often because we do not get them distinctly and not hearing them distinctly, we do not visualize them. It helps a good deal to speak a man's name whenever one meets him, and at once to attach to it some other details of place or situation or relationships.

Meat was introduced to me two or three days ago, and before he got out of the office I discovered his home town, his business, his friends with whom I am also acquainted. All these will help me to remember him when he comes to see me again as he will within three months.

Remembering names is a matter of interest in people, of persistence in following up the elusive name. It is a matter of association, unconscious or consciously devised. Some people remember names more easily than others, but anyone can learn the trick just as everyone can learn to spell or to like heels, if he keeps at it persistently. Much good timber on our council. How much stronger it would be if it had a modern charter behind it.

The Terminal is on file in the Capitol Library, in Washington, D. C., also in the State Library at Sacramento. It is also on file in all the public libraries of Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley, Martinez, Richmond and all the Chambers of Commerce. No daily papers are extended this privilege as the work of filing becomes too cumbersome. The once a week publications are favored because of the convenience and their contents being summarized for the entire week. The Terminal wears no muzzle.
